

Corporate Social Responsibility – 2009/2010

I am pleased to introduce Expro's corporate and social responsibility report for 2009/10.

Developing and running our business safely and responsibly is of vital importance to Expro. At every level of our business, we appreciate the need to continually improve the service and performance that we deliver, in order to protect our people, our brand and the reputations of our customers. This year, we have taken further steps to ensure that our people have both the technical expertise and the responsibility to carry out their duties safely and efficiently.

We have implemented a range of operational and management safety programs and have continued to invest in technology developments and training, each in the pursuit of delivering excellence to our customers across the world.

We continue to progress our highly-focused strategy to position our business as a major provider of key technologies to oil and gas markets worldwide. This has included significant investment in our global presence to bring us closer to our markets and provide the edge in anticipating the needs of our customers.

This year, we were delighted to again receive plaudits from the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents, who awarded us a gold medal in recognition of six years of success in their annual safety awards scheme. This is a significant achievement and reflects the industry-leading standards that have become synonymous with the Expro name.

Our brand is built on quality, integrity and reliability, and we will never be complacent. While we are proud of the progress and achievements outlined in this report, we take our corporate and social responsibilities seriously and appreciate that all of our stakeholders expect Expro to keep delivering to the highest standards.

Preventing harm to people:

Our performance

- Expro has consistently outperformed industry-established standards in health and safety since 03/04. This year, our LTI and TRCF performances are again well below OGP-established targets, which is testament to our continued commitment to safety
- In recognition of six years of industry-leading safety performance across our global operations, we received a Gold Medal in the annual Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents awards scheme
- We implemented 'Managing Safely' courses across Expro after three of our senior safety professionals achieved trainer status from the Institution of Occupational Safety and Health (IOSH)

Developing people

- We implemented a safety leadership programme using the Institution of Occupational Safety and Health's 'Managing Safely' as the platform for delivery. We received approval from IOSH to deliver the programme internally. We have now trained over 120 managers globally and this will continue until every supervisor/manager has attended the programme.
- Online safety training has been rolled out to operational personnel in North America and Latin America.
- Expro's Competence Management Programme, which allows us to fully monitor and develop the talent in Expro, continues to be rolled out globally. Building on the implementation of our slickline, well test, data acquisition and subsea programmes, we have now developed competency programmes for additional product lines such as Tubing Conveyed Perforating, Wireline Intervention as well as land operations in the US.
- Expro well test training programmes have been delivered to our Joint Venture partners in China.
- A significant amount of Expro-developed training has been delivered to customers such as Statoil, Saudi Aramco, Chevron and Tullow personnel.
- We have further developed our in-house capability to manage and deliver training to our employees by investing in new learning and development teams, which are now established in Europe CIS and Middle East & North Africa regions.
- Training spend for the year was $3.9million. This is a reduction of spend on the previous year, due to reduced external training course expenditure, but there has been a significant increase in the internal training hours completed.
- Staff turnover has improved on previous figures and is down almost 4% to 16.96% for 09/10.
